Jennifer Gregor is a shareholder in the firm's intellectual property and litigation practices, and is the chair of the firm's intellectual property litigation practice. Jennifer is a registered patent attorney who assists clients with all aspects of intellectual property, including procurement, clearance, and enforcement.

Jennifer is a past president of the Western District of Wisconsin Bar Association. She has litigated cases in district courts across the country and in the Seventh, Ninth, and Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals, and has experience representing clients in inter partes review (IPR) proceedings before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board and in oppositions, cancellations, and appeals at the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board. Jennifer's patent litigation experience includes cases relating to sporting goods, consumer appliances, engine and automotive technologies, call centers, and internet based technologies. She has also litigated trademark, advertising, unfair competition, copyright, licensing, and trade secret cases in a wide variety of industries including banking services, consumer products, healthcare, food products, and restaurant services. In the commercial litigation context, Jennifer has also litigated disputes involving software, IT systems and installation, product liability, antitrust, defamation and a wide variety of contract matters.

Jennifer regularly counsels clients regarding the management of intellectual property assets, including patent and trademark prosecution, managing domestic and international patent and trademark portfolios, and agreements relating to intellectual property. She is experienced in advertising law, contests and promotions, product clearance, domain name matters, and internet issues. Prior to attending law school, Jennifer worked in the pharmaceutical and agricultural industries.
