Aaron P. McCann is a shareholder at Godfrey & Kahn, and a member of the Labor, Employment & Immigration practice.

Aaron maintains a broad-based employment law practice focused on defending employers' interests in disputes before federal and state courts and administrative agencies, including the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Wisconsin Equal Rights Division, National Labor Relations Board, and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Aaron's employment litigation experience includes defending employers against discrimination and retaliation claims, wage and hour class and collective action lawsuits, restrictive covenant enforcement actions, unfair labor practice charges, union grievances, safety-related whistleblower claims, and workplace safety citations.

Aaron's employment law practice also involves regularly counseling and advising sophisticated corporate and manufacturing clients on a wide variety of employment law issues, including recruitment and hiring risks, compensation and timekeeping practices, internal disciplinary investigations, disability accommodation, family and medical leave administration, workforce reductions, drafting employment, non-compete and separation agreements, and Occupational Safety and Health Act compliance.

Aaron has been annually named to Best Lawyers® Ones to Watch for Employment Litigation and Wisconsin Rising Stars® by Super Lawyers® for Employment & Labor law since 2021.

Prior to joining Godfrey & Kahn, Aaron served as a Judicial Intern for Justice N. Patrick Crooks, Wisconsin Supreme Court, in-house law clerk at a Fortune 500 company, and Deputy Director of Wisconsin Governor James E. Doyle's Washington, D.C. office.
